The University of Chicago
Booth School of Business
5807 South Woodlawn Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60637
austin.smith2@chicagobooth.edu

Part Time Research Assistant

Professor Erika Kirgios is looking for research assistance with several projects at the Center for Decision Research. The successful applicant must have some background knowledge in behavioral science (i.e., research in social psychology, business, or behavioral economics).

The responsibilities of the position will include sending emails for a research project, tracking data, conducting literature reviews, and working with a team to test and update project procedures and logistics. Successful applicants will have the opportunity to collaborate with our research team on projects related to measuring and preventing discrimination. This work is varied and challenging, and well-suited to candidates looking to push themselves with a variety of projects that provide experience with the research process.

This position can start immediately. It will require an average commitment of about 5-10 hours per week, depending on your availability. Standard pay for the position is $16/hour, and this is non-negotiable as all research assistants must receive equal salaries. The position is open for remote work. If you are interested, please email a CV and brief statement of interest to austin.smith2@chicagobooth.edu

Deadline for application: December 9th, though applications will be evaluated on a rolling basis starting November 28th

The University of Chicago provides equal employment opportunities to all employees, applicants, and job seekers. No person shall be discriminated against in employment or harassed because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, disability, veteran status, genetic information, marital status, parental status, ancestry, source of income, or other classes protected by law. This policy includes the commitment to maintaining a work environment free from unlawful harassment.